Chapter 25: The Scepter of Dominion

In the heart of the Absolute Realm, where the Divine Triad resides, Absolute Humanoid Being stood tall, holding the legendary Scepter of Dominion in his grasp. This artifact, forged with the essence of the Absolute Beings themselves, was a symbol of ultimate control, imbued with the power to bend the wills of all who existed within the multiverse.

The Activation of the Scepter

With a deliberate motion, Absolute Humanoid Being raised the Scepter of Dominion, its core glowing with an ethereal light. As he activated it, a surge of energy rippled outwards, cascading across the vast expanse of the Divine Triad's multiverse.

The Ripple Across the Multiverse

The moment the scepter’s power was unleashed, all living beings—whether they were creatures of light, darkness, or shadow—felt its weight. From the celestial Apostles of God to the ancient Seven Rulers and Seven Monarchs, even the most powerful and independent beings found themselves under its influence.

Essence of Loyalty and Submission flooded into their souls, intertwining with their very essence. It was not a command, but a binding force—a force that tugged at the very core of their being. The once free and willful entities, including the mighty Rulers and Monarchs, now found their rebellious thoughts stilled.

No being, no matter how powerful, could resist the pull of the Scepter’s authority. Every creature—be they Apostles, Heavenly Soldiers, Shadow Lords, or even the fearsome Dragons of Shadow—felt an unshakable loyalty and an unbreakable sense of duty to the Divine Triad. The rebellious fires of defiance were extinguished, leaving only unwavering submission and loyalty.

Effect on the Seven Rulers and Seven Monarchs

The Seven Rulers, ancient and mighty beings who once held dominion over vast realms, and the Seven Monarchs, the ultimate embodiments of power and destruction, all felt the weight of the Scepter’s influence. Though each of them possessed unmatched strength and authority, not even they could escape its power.

The Rulers, who once led their armies in defiance against other cosmic forces, could no longer entertain thoughts of betrayal or defiance. Their minds, once filled with pride and ambition, were now infused with a sense of servitude to the Divine Triad.

The Monarchs, embodiments of elemental power and darkness, were likewise bound. Their immense strength now turned towards the protection of the Divine Triad, their abilities no longer used for selfish conquest but for the service of their creators.

A Unified Cosmos

As the influence of the Scepter of Dominion spread, the multiverse itself began to change. No longer would there be scattered factions, each vying for control. Instead, a unified cosmos emerged, held together by the absolute and unyielding will of the Divine Triad.

The Apostles of God, whose purpose had always been to serve, now did so with an even greater sense of duty. Their devotion to the Triad was no longer just a choice, but an undeniable bond.

The Heavenly Soldiers, the loyal warriors of the Triad, now found their obedience to be their only driving force. Their once individual wills faded, replaced by a single-minded focus on carrying out the Triad's will.

The Shadow Lords and Dragon Lords, now infused with the essence of loyalty and submission, saw their roles not as independent commanders but as devoted servants to the Triad’s cause. Even the mighty Seven Dragons of Shadow found themselves bound by the Triad’s will.

The World Under One Will

Under the influence of the Scepter of Dominion, the world of the Divine Triad's multiverse was no longer a place of competing desires. All creatures, no matter how powerful, now served one purpose: to serve the Divine Triad. The once varied, independent realms now existed in perfect harmony, all united under the will of the three great beings who had created them.

The Absolute Realm, the home of the Triad, stood as the center of this new order. The castles of the Divine Triad—Absolute Castle, Umbra Citadel, and Eternis Draconis—now stood as the ultimate symbols of dominion, not just in terms of power, but in the very fabric of existence.

End of Rebellion

No longer would any force rise against the Divine Triad. The essence of loyalty and submission woven into the very souls of every being in the multiverse ensured that no rebellion could ever stir. Even the whispers of dissent that had once echoed through the realms were silenced, drowned in the overwhelming presence of the Triad’s power.

As the Scepter of Dominion hummed with power in the hands of Absolute Humanoid Being, he looked over the unified multiverse. His mission was complete. The balance of power had shifted, and with it, a new era had dawned—one in which the will of the Divine Triad reigned supreme.

The multiverse was theirs to command, and no force—no matter how ancient or powerful—would ever rise against them again.
